

If you think you can't afford a mini-computer, you're probably right.

No one knows better than you about the limits of your agency budget. That's why at Matrix we offer you an alternative to an expensive computer. With our on-line terminal system you can have total in-house computer capability at a fraction of the cost. In the convenience of your own office, and at any time, you have "real time" access to every batch system service you are now receiving, plus word processing, statement printing, customer profiling and many other agency management reports—instantaneous computer receiving and updating! For more information on how you can implement this affordable in-house system contact:
